PROBERS SUFFER ACCUSATIONS OF DAUGHERTY AIDE

Near Riot Results on Heels Of Wrangle of Five Men Testimony

HOT REMARKS PASS

Argument Starts Over Halt On Names of Five Men In Alleged Deal

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 27.—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse Smith, spent an hour on the witness stand today under cross-examination by counsel for Attorney General Daugherty. A large part of the time was taken up by wrangling among the lawyers.

Paul Howland and former Senator Chamberlain, attorneys for Mr. Daugherty, insisted that the witness should tell the names of the five men who had been in the oil stock deal. The committee which had ruled that the names were irrelevant finally became tangled in argument and the witness was excused without any further pursuit of the matter. "My impression," said Senator Chamberlain, "is that she is going to say that Jess Smith told her one of the five men was the president of the United States."

"We are not going to walk into your trap," shouted Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona. "You would like very much to have us charged with having smeared the name of some one now dead and we are not going to walk into your trap."

Sensors Get Titled. "We do not know who these five people are and we care less," Senator Chamberlain said. "We assume the committee wants the truth. My impression is that the witness will say that Jess Smith told her one of the five men was the president of the United States. Now when this villifier Frank Vanderlip—"

Here the committee came into action. Senator Wheeler said that he "was under fire and every member of this committee is under attack by the Republican national committee."

"It is time for me to make a stump speech," interjected Senator Ashurst. "You are anxious to put us in a trap where we will be charged by the metropolitan press with besmirching the name of a man now dead. Though you dog our steps day and night you have not walked us into this trap."

While the committee was asking about the $33,000,000 stock deal Miss Stinson was examined by Mr. Howland as to her testimony concerning Smith's stock deals and an incident in Cleveland where it was reported L. A. Fink of Buffalo registered her as his wife. She insisted she went to Cleveland to talk with Fink about a deal in reorganizing a rubber tire company and that she refused to take part in it because she believed it was a "bubble."

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The senate committee investigating Attorney General Daugherty went into executive session at 9:30 o'clock this morning to consider whether Roxie Stinson should be asked to name the "five men" she said Jess Smith had told her were involved in a $33,000,000 Sinclair oil stock deal.

James Bound Over On Embezzlement Charge in Court

E. E. James, charged with embezzlement, was bound over to await the action of the district court yesterday afternoon in a lengthy preliminary hearing before Justice Joseph Anderson and his bond was placed $1500.

Early today James had not made bond but his release on pledges of bondsmen is thought to be eminent. James was arrested some time ago charged with converting a fund of $715 to his own use after it had been entrusted to him for oil land investment.

The concert was given as an introduction for the Shrine Circus, which will be held tomorrow under the auspices of the Pontotoc County Shrine club for the purpose of raising money for the temple campaign.

LIONS PAY HONOR TO CLUB WOMEN

Mrs. Van Leuvin Addresses Meeting for Club Women Response

The Lions honored the visiting club women at a luncheon today at the First Baptist church. More than one hundred Lions, their wives and guests gathered around the tables in the basement of the church and enjoyed an hour of delightful eating and entertainment.

President A. Linscheid served as the toastmaster. Dr. Sam A. McKee, president of the Lions, welcomed the ladies to the city. Music was furnished by Burgess Steed, Mrs. W. A. Hill, Miss Bonnie Callis, Miss Lillian Strite and Miss Harvey, consisting of cornet, vocal and violin solos.

The address of the occasion was delivered by Mrs. Catherine Van Leuvin of the Attorney General's office at Oklahoma City. She paid a tribute to the late Judge Galbraith of Ada and C. W. Briles, formerly president of the local college.

The well known speaker praised the modern business man and styled him a wonderful creation of modern times. In her opinion, the professional man is one-sided, developing only one phase of his nature, while the business man must develop all lines of human endeavor. She praised the Lions, laying stress on their slogan of Liberty and Intelligence.

A picture of what she expects to see here in the future closed her address, stressing the fact that the people will work scientifically and harmoniously for all, landlords will charge equitable rents, business men equitable profits, scientific marketing will be applied to farm products and the people will learn to play sanely.

We neglect government and play. We must take care of these, as well as look after wholesome entertainment for Sundays, developing good fellowship, honesty and integrity, she said.

Mrs. Tom Hope thanked the Lions for the entertainment and told what the federated clubs stand for.

(By the Associated Press) OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27.—The board of managers of the house of representatives, prosecuting the impeachment trial of John A. Whitehurst, submitted the last of their evidence at the morning session of the senate impeachment court today.

MOSCOW'S WALL ST. HAS ITS SCANDAL, TOO

The stock exchange of Moscow, which is one of the most important factors in the financial system of the federation of Russian soviet republics, is restoring its equilibrium after being severely shaken by discovery of embezzlements of Alexander Krasnoschekov, president of the Industrial Bank. The latter was once a lawyer in Chicago under the name of Tobanson. The staging of Athenian parties led to revelation of his manipulations of bank funds in the interest of himself and his brother. Both have been under arrest for some time.

The managing board of the stock exchange, of which Krasnoschekov was a member until his arrest is meeting the situation under the generalship of Gomborg, the president of the exchange.

ITALIAN TOWN SWEEP BY LANDSLIDE TO SEA

(By the Associated Press) SALERNO, Italy, March 27.—The gravity of the land slide in the vicinity of Amalfi yesterday grows hourly. Estimates have placed the number of deaths in the villages along the coast at 50 but many of these places are cut off from road and wire communication.

The chief villages affected are Vietica where the bulk of victims is reported. (A Rome dispatch last night said there were at least 100 dead in Vietica.) The government is rushing all possible help to the scene. There is possibility that a number of Americans are affected as a large convoy of tourists left for Amalfi yesterday. A steamship has left Naples to embark any tourists or others in need of aid.

The slide descended into the sea from a steep headland. The sea is now the only approach to the scene and fishermen's boats are hurrying to the succor of victims with supplies for the stricken zone.

The slide was caused by the undermining of the shore by recent violent storms.

Al Jennings's Size Disappointing

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Draped as a drug store cowboy in a flashy tweed suit and wearing hornrimmed eye glasses, Al Jennings didn't meet up with Washington's expectations of a bold, bad bandit when he arrived here today to testify before the Teapot committee tomorrow.

Capitol employees who had expected to see a hulking six-footer eyed the diminutive Oklahoman with amazement.

Jennings declined to discuss testimony in advance. "One thing certain, tho, some Republican on the committee is sure to ask me if I'm not an ex-train robber, whereupon I'll reply 'yes but I have it to my credit that I was never secretary of interior under a Republican administration'."

TWO MEN LOSE LIVES IN OIL TANK FIRE

(By the Associated Press) PONCA CITY, March 27.—R. C. Wheeler of Ranger, Texas, and Henry Loran, believed to be of Sayre, Okla., lost their lives in a fire at Three Sands, an oil field town near Tonkawa early today which destroyed a block of business houses.

The fire is believed to have started from a gas stove in a rooming house.

OSAGE LAND KEPT FROM CITY GROWTH

Reservation in Tulsa Would Bring Enormous Sum Realtors Claim

TULSA, Okla., March 27.—What might have been the richest residential district of Tulsa is a tract of land, several hundred acres in extent, lying in the heart of the country club district, on the northern edge of the city, yet barren and fenced off to the public—a tract of land in the Osage reservation.

The property value of this tract has been estimated variously. It would bring hundreds of thousands of dollars. But its owner, S. G. Kennedy of the Osage nation, a pioneer Oklahoman, refused to sell for fear that titles to the land might become clouded.

The land has been pictured as a desirable residential district. For miles about no tract would make a better site for an addition of homes, real estate men say, than this tract belonging to Kennedy. Persistent efforts of local financiers in years past to obtain its title have failed.

The land makes a gradual slope from the border of homes, that surround it in three directions, to hills of green, tree-clad and rich in natural beauty. If homes were to be built on this land, they would include those of the wealthiest here, for many of the rich oil producers, bankers and merchants have expressed desires to build in the district.

But the land lies utterly devoid of any habitation, a striking contrast to the developments of tracts bordering it. For this reason largely Tulsa has built to the south. Virtually all the homes of the rich and the new apartment buildings in late years are located in the south side of the city.

Homes have been built around Kennedy's land and from the air, the tract appears like a square cut from a huge fancy cake. If Kennedy would sell his land, there would be a radical change in the building program of this city, real estate men agree.

Burbank Would Give Creation Gardens For Public Benefit

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Luther Burbank, plant wizard has offered his $100,000 "creation gardens" to California for educational and scientific purposes.

This became known today when a petition approved by Burbank appeared asking the board of regents of the University of California to take over the gardens. The gardens, under the terms of the petition would be made a unit of the state's higher educational system.

The botanist has been offered $100,000 for the gardens but he says commercial profits appeal to him less than the public benefit to be gained in carrying on the gardens on a scientific basis.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS REPORT SLACK BUSINESS

The advent of Spring has caused a decrease in the number of arrests in both city and county enforcement offices, it was made known today from the record of their activities. The police department reports two cases in the past two days with a clean sheet for the remaining days of the week, while the county department has had few arrests during the week.

KANSAS CITY, MEXICO AND ORIENT ROAD IS SOLD

KANSAS CITY, March 27.—The Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad was sold at public auction here today by Clifford Histed, general attorney for the road, for $2,000,000. Only two bids were made the other being for $2,764,000 offered by E. E. Mullen of the federal reserve bank of Kansas City. The auction lasted 10 minutes.

FINAL HONOR CONFERRED ON AMERICAN CARDINALS

(By the Associated Press) ROME, March 27.—Pope Pius today publicly conferred the red hat on Cardinals Hays and Mundellin, the final act in the elevation of the two American prelates to the membership of the sacred college. The ceremony performed in the right transept of St. Peter's was carried out with all the pomp and pageantry of the Roman Catholic church in a setting the like of which does not exist outside of the Eternal City.

It was the first public consistory ever held in the huge basilica and was witnessed by a congregation of numbers exceeding three or four times those attending similar functions in the past. It was truly an American day both from the fact that the new cardinals raised were United States citizens and that the great majority of the spectators were also Americans. It is estimated that there were easily 10,000 persons present.

Newton reports that his show troupe is ready for their initial performance of the season here tomorrow. The entire personnel of the show is now in Ada and ready for their part in the show that will make a tour over the central states after appearing here tomorrow.

The entire proceeds of the show over the expenses of the performers will go to the Pontotoc County club. The club will have charge of the management of the show tomorrow.

OWEN BRANDS RUMORS OF HIS RESIGNATION

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27.—Robert L. Owen, United States senator, dropped into Oklahoma City Wednesday night and immediately put the quietus on rumors that he contemplated resigning before the end of his term and so giving Gov. Trapp an opportunity to name some one to the senate.

"Absolutely nothing to it," said Senator Owen. He was then on his way to see Governor Trapp at the latter's rooms at the Hickman.

"I will finish the term for which I was elected," he declared with emphasis. When it became known about the hotel lobbies that the senator would spend the evening here and would have a conference with Governor Trapp, politicians put two and two together and decided the senior senator was going to resign. It was also talked that the senator was being urged by old time party leaders to reconsider his determination to retire to private life.

"Absolutely not," said Owen. "I have earned my rest; I want peace and quiet and the time for study and nothing can induce me to make the race for senator again."

INQUIRY TO BE MADE INTO DEMOCRATIC FUND

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 27.—An inquiry into Democratic campaign funds will be made by the senate oil committee on motion of Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri.

The grounds adjoining the glass plant have taken on that sawdust smell that indicates circus joys for young and old alike and brings the curious throngs of sight-seekers to the concession and main tent of Honest Bill Newton's Shows.

Through the efforts of Honest Bill Newton, who swings his shows to the open highway Saturday, show tents have been pitched and an early start obtained toward receiving the hordes of circus goers and patrons of the local Shrine club.

Newton reports that his show troupe is ready for their initial performance of the season here tomorrow. The entire personnel of the show is now in Ada and ready for their part in the show that will make a tour over the central states after appearing here tomorrow.

AL JENNINGS IS WITNESS BEFORE SENATE PROBERS

Former Oklahoma Bandit, now Evangelist and Politician, Spins Yarn

MILLION DOLLAR DEAL

Claims Jake Hamon Planned To be President; Paid Big Bonus

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 27.—The story about a big money deal at the Chicago national convention in 1920 was repeated with many new dashes of color before the senate oil committee by Al Jennings, who became famous years ago as a train robber and since has turned evangelist and politician.

Jennings said he was passing on what had been told him by Jake Hamon, Oklahoma Republican national committee man who was killed by Clara Smith Hamon late in 1920. Briefly Hamon's story as related by Jennings on the stand today as follows:

That Hamon had "nominated" Warren G. Harding for president and that it had cost him (Hamon) $1,000,000.

That the cost of carrying Oklahoma for Harding had been $500,000.

That Hamon had paid Harry M. Daugherty $25,000, Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, $25,000 and Senator Boise Penrose of Pennsylvania $250,000.

That Hamon was to become secretary of the interior and share in the public lands, expecting with the money he would make to become president later.

Jennings said he had known Hamon for a number of years and had gone with him to the Chicago convention.

Nomination Costs Million. "We went to a room in one of the hotels," the witness said. "He told me Harding would be nominated next day and that it had cost him $1,000,000. He said he would be secretary of the interior, that Mr. Daugherty was at first in favor of Senator Fall for the position but that he finally was won over."

"That's about all I know of it," Jennings said. "Replying to an inquiry from Senator Wheeler Jennings said:

"He (Hamon) wanted me to head one of his companies. He said the Democrats had not got much of the public lands but that he would get the rest of it."

"Did he speak about the oil reserves?"

"He said public lands, nothing about the oil reserves. He said money had been very potent in Washington as in outlying districts of the United States and that with his money he would be president of the United States. I have talked with people in Oklahoma about Hamon's expectations and I do not think he kept them from anybody."

"Did you talk with anybody about his being secretary of the interior?"

"No."

"Did he say to whom he gave any money besides Senator Penrose?"

"Yes, sir. Daugherty $25,000, Will Hays $25,000 and a man—is there a man named Manning from Ohio?—well, some one in Ohio to whom he gave $25,000. There was a fourth person."

"Anyone else?"

"No one I can remember. Money was used freely with the Oklahoma delegation."

"Did he say how much it cost?"

"No, sir."

"Did you have any conversation with Mr. Hamon before going to Chicago as to his business plans for the future?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Yes, that goes back to 1917," Jennings said.

He then told of a visit to Hamon in Ardmore, spending a night in a hotel talking.

"We had some drinks of 'Four Roses'," Jennings said, "and talked all night. Hamon wanted me to go back and run for governor. Hamon said 'I am going to be the biggest man in the United States before I close my career.'"

The story told by Jennings was branded as false and preposterous in a statement by Leighton C. Taylor, former secretary to Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania. Declaring he had been in constant attendance upon the senator while he was ill in Philadelphia before and during the convention, Taylor said that Hamon had never seen or communicated with Penrose, nor had the latter ever mentioned Hamon's name to his secretary.

Daugherty's Brother Ordered. WASHINGTON, March 27.—The senate Daugherty committee today ordered M. S. Daugherty, brother of the attorney general, summoned to appear in answer to a summons Senator Walsh said had been served.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GIVE, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again.—Luke 6:38.

WOMEN USE SOUND JUDGMENT

Some of the speakers at the Federation meeting have referred to the efforts frequently made since the women were enfranchised to win their indorsement of various and sundry matters. One said that at the last national meeting no fewer than 130 requests of this kind were made but few received any attention whatever.

This indicates that the influence of the women is something both to be desired and to be dreaded. With the backing of a fairly large per centage almost any measure would stand a fair chance of being adopted in course of a few years at least, but it must be said to the credit of the women that thus far they have shown sound judgment and no person or interest has been able to stampede them.

One of the speakers Wednesday evening advised strongly against a woman's party, very sensibly suggesting that the women should refuse to be bound by anything except right. With this as their governing principle the women of the United States can hold the balance of power and exert a powerful influence for the welfare of the nation. Thus far they have certainly displayed good judgment by pursuing a conservative course and striving to make certain of their ground before taking a position.

Writing of Spring, Editor Jim Lowry of the Honey Grove Signal uses some pretty language. He says: Today is the first day of spring—according to the calendar. We dare not say what it will be according to the elements, as this is written a day or two in advance, and no old Texan will venture a guess at what the weather will be or do tomorrow. But according to the division of the season, Spring makes her advent today. We are always glad to see and welcome spring, for spring means new life. It is morning, gladdening the world with auroral glow after the darkness of night. It is call of the great Leaders to the birds to tune their throats to new and glad notes and thrill and soothe the world with the cadence of song. It is the breaking of the bars of the tomb that held the flowers imprisoned and calling flora forth to the loveliness of bud and bloom and the sweetness of fragrance. Spring means new-washed skies with a deeper amethystean glow in the great central blue. It means fresher stars to gem the radiant brow of night and more of the glow of the topaz in the shine of the great orb of day. Spring comes to teach us many lessons, but perhaps her greatest lesson is that she has not been dead—that she did not die when we saw the leaves crumble and the flowers petals chilled and stiffened in icy embrace. Nay, spring has only been slumbering beneath autumn and winter and now she comes to reveal unto us the perpetuity, the eternity or spring. While spring slumbered under harsher seasons there was an inner sunshine, invisible to man, that kept alive her beauty and her fragrance and preserved the cadence of her song. And this is the secret of the eternal springtime seen in many lives. The glory of morning's strength departs, the material substance gathered by a life of toil is swept away; friend after friend, loved one after loved one departs until all have their names carved on tombs; weakness and pain hold sway where once strength and vigor sat enthroned; "change and decay in all around is seen," yet night by night these lives sing songs of hope and day by day these lives are warmed and cheered by eternal sunshine. Eternal spring flowers beneath the sad autumns and winters, illumining the face, gladdening the heart and awakening the fountains of songs in the far depths of the soul to the music of all the bells. Even as the inner sunshine, invisible to man, preserves the beauty and the fragrance of the rose that slumbers under winter's sod, even so the eternal springtime of the soul, the friendly relationship with God, soothes and sustains man when winter falls, and tints each tomorrow with prophetic ray.

The fall of the Poincare cabinet in France is the outstanding political event of the day, although it is not probable that there will be much change in the French policy. Indeed, it now appears that Poincare may simply re-organize his cabinet and then attempt to go ahead. In France, as in Great Britain, the life of a cabinet depends on the pleasure of the lower house of parliament. When the cabinet fails to secure a majority on any measure it is backing it resigns and another is formed. Cabinets in France have usually been short lived, three years being the longest any cabinet has survived since the republic was established some 53 years ago. Often a cabinet has lasted only a few weeks. Poincare was in power about two years which was a good record.

The killing of Ed Lockhart brings to an end another outlaw career and carries with it the oft repeated lesson that no man can forever defy the law and not pay the penalty. Sooner or later the day of reckoning must come. Even those who seek to work their schemes under cover of the law always pay the penalty sooner or later.

GRADY STUMBLES OVER BANDIT SEARCHING FOR ANOTHER MAN

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27.—When Mont Grady appeared in the office of Col. W. S. Key, warden at McAlester penitentiary last Monday morning to ask for a job, he had two cards up his sleeve.

"Warden, I've got a record of nine years of honorable service as a turnkey. I resigned back in 1920, but I need a job. Can you use me?"

Key was mildly interested. Applications for jobs are a part of daily routine.

Grady eyed Key and decided he had a "bum" hand. Then he revealed his hole card. Fred Walker of Osage county, serving twelve years for larceny, had escaped from prison last September. Grady had a tip on Walker and he had a hunch that Walker could be found.

"If I deputize you, do you think you can bring Walker back?" Key asked.

"Do I get a job if I do?" Grady countered.

"Bring him back, and we'll talk that over." And the interview was closed.

When Mont Grady entered the front door of Fred Walker's Osage farm home Wednesday two things impressed him. One was the business of a long rifle, which projected itself into the pit of his stomach; the other was the man behind the gun. It was not Fred Walker. "Stick 'em up," Ed Lockhart, bank robber, prison-breaker, outlaw and pal of outlaws, was not a man to be denied. Grady kissed that prospective job a painful farewell and obeyed Lockhart's command.

Wednesday afternoon the telephone in the warden's office at McAlester prison suddenly came to life. "Tulsa calling the warden."

Key took the receiver.

"Hello, warden," came a voice at the other end of the wire. "I am sorry to tell you that I didn't get Walker."

"No?" corroborated the voice.

"But I did get Ed Lockhart."

"What!" Key's usually impassive countenance lighted up with excitement and unbelief.

"Yeah," came the voice again.

"Son-of-a-gun took my gun from me and I had to kill him to get it back. Do I get that job?"

Key had regained his composure. "Come down and talk it over," he chuckled dryly.

WILBUR STRONG FOR NAVY AND MARRIAGE FOR AMERICA

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Two minutes' conversation with Curtis Dwight Wilbur, Californian who has just taken over the navy department's helm, tells you he is a firm believer in and strong supporter of two great American institutions. One of these is marriage. The other is the navy.

New Personality.

So far as Washington and the country generally are concerned Wilbur is a new face and a new personality. Physically he is a big chap, tall like one of his California trees or the corn of his native Iowa.

The judge peers thru his manner at odd moments and then again the boy twinkles in his eyes, as for instance, when he tells Mrs. Wilbur fell in love with Washington.

"She loves the city," he said, chuckling youthfully. "I was wondering what her reaction would be. It was all I could have asked for. She's gone out house hunting pleased as a child."

Not Miser.

Wilbur stated crisply his position on conversation—the conversation of the navy's oil and of the nation's resources, generally.

"I'm a conservationist," he said, "but not a miser. I believe in conserving and developing at the same time, using wisely now and keeping for the future as well. This is essentially possible and I'm for it."

His job with the navy, as Wilbur sees it, is to make the American fleet the most efficient in the world. He has a definite understanding of what that means. "I am for a thoroughly modernized sea force," he said.

Bad Policy.

"It is neither patriotism nor economy to have ships that are out-ranged by the ships of another power. It would be terribly wrong if we ever have to face a foe to send our young men to face him with guns less effective than his."

"Here," as his pen paused over a letter, "here is a note to Hobson. He is responsible in a large degree for the interest the people take in the navy now. They are interested in it. We will never have a big army; our people won't stand for it. But they want a bang-up navy."

ABANDONMENT

(Ardmoreite)

Yesterday a man was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary for abandonment of wife and child. It was the first conviction under the new statute.

Five years is too light. It should be 25 years and there should be no recourse for a pardon.

A man who will abandon a helpless child must do it wilfully and knowingly, for tiny hands tug at heart strings continually. A man who would leave his baby to be supported by neighbors would not hesitate at murder. There is no place in the social life of this nation for such a criminal.

Abandonment of wife should be treated in the same light, yet it must be considered that some time the wife is to blame for the separation, but this separation should not be cowardly; it should be thru legitimate means.

Now let us turn a page of history in Carter county. Last year the county attorney's office filed more than a dozen charges of wife abandonment. In every case when the man was brought back for trial he whined, begged for mercy—and his wife opened her heart and took him back.

$80,000 in Furs and Gowns Revealed in "Black Oxen"

A majority of the scenes from the Lloyd production are laid in and near New York and the interior settings used in the filming of the most artistic yet seen on the screen. In addition to the artistic backgrounds, "Black Oxen" is further enhanced pictorially by the elaborate wardrobe worn by Miss Griffith and other members of the cast, costumes and furs presenting a cost of nearly $80,000.

The principal theme of the story develops when Madame Zlatianny, rejuvenated by a marvelous glandular treatment, returns to New York after an absence of 34 years, to quietly attend the sale of her American business interests and return to Austria to assist in relief work. A visit to a first night theatrical performance, however, attracts the interest of Clavering, a newspaper man, and Dinwiddie, an old friend, and both men start immediately to ascertain who the charming visitor might be. Clavering is first to meet Zlatianny and within a short time their acquaintanceship develops into a romance.

Zlatianny, however, refuses to give her answer to Clavering's proposal of marriage until he has acquainted their friends with her true identity. When she reveals the fact that she is really old enough to be Clavering's mother, the newspaperman assures her that the great difference in their ages means naught to him. Zlatianny puts his love to the test in many ways and finds his devotion is sincere.

Debating in her mind whether or not she is entitled to the love of a much younger man, Zlatianny learns that Prince Hohenauer of Austria has arrived in Austria to see her.

INSURANCE RATE NOW CONSIDERED

Compensation Measure Would Mean Saving to State Industries

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27.—Compensation insurance rate increase asked in petitions filed with the state insurance board, is being closely studied by Oklahoma industrial employers.

All but six major insurance companies operating in the state have joined in the petition which will now come up for hearing April 29, having been postponed until that date.

That the premium increase would mean $800,000 annually to Oklahoma is the statement of Harry V. Kahle of the Oklahoma Employers association.

Kahle in a bulletin points out that the average increase asked in all lines is 21.1 percent.

Oklahoma has the largest loss ratio of any state in the union, Kahle says he is informed. He says that doctor bills in Oklahoma average $28 per case to $16 for other states.

Kahle further says in his bulletin:

"I am informed by one insurance company that their medical bills as okayed by the state industrial commission are 60 percent higher than any other state of the union."

"We are informed that the present rate is sufficient to meet the payment of all legitimate doctor bills and compensation insurance as provided for and maintained by the compensation act but the proposed increase in rate is made necessary by the unjust, unwarranted and unreasonable liberality of the industrial board in the allowance of doctor's bills and awards."

According to law, all state companies would charge the compensation insurance rate established by the insurance board.

Following is the classification prepared by Kahle to show the code, rate and increase:

Was skeptical of Kellogg's Bran until it gave him back his health

Naturally Mr. Carter—whose letter follows—was skeptical. He had tried practically everything for the relief of constipation. All had failed. But Kellogg's Bran brought him permanent relief, just as it has done for thousands of others. Read his letter:

Gentlemen:
I am 43 years old, and have been for years a great sufferer from constipation. I had to resign a clerical position because of rushes of blood to my head, some of which caused me to fall to the ground. I took an outdoor laboring job and tried for the first time, skeptically I admit, your Krumbled Bran. The result has been wonderful. I began to be normal after I had been on the Bran about three days. No more enemas, no more Old Dr. So-and-So's Pills, Epsom salts by the ton, etc., ad infinitum! You have the most wonderful product for constipation I have ever seen or tried. Yours very gratefully,

L. T. Carter, 294 Nineteenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, does not irritate the intestines like drugs and pills. It acts exactly as nature acts. Eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the exclusive, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat two tablespoonsful daily—in chronic cases with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Made in Battle Creek.

Three handsome hats, sufficiently dignified for matronly wearers, reveal the spirited and subtle lines that prove so flattering. They are all of fine millan. Little wings of braid finish the coronet incrustated with flowers, on the last hat.

Bee Feeding is Important

April! The month of sunshine and showers—the beekeepers' New Year—less hours of planning and more hours for working. Sometimes we plan on the jump and often wish we had planned sooner when there was time a-plenty. There are many things to do this month but only a few of them are important. In our own particular region, some of the things we would like to do will probably not be done because of the condition of the roads. All during March we watched for chances to visit the out yards but were continually discouraged as going was at times almost impossible. Heavy rains added much to our distress.

One should anticipate the unsettled conditions in spring. Next fall will not find us without enough sugar syrup for spring feeding at each apiary to give each colony at least ten or fifteen pounds apiece. Then, with a horse and a light spring buggy, we can pull through somehow and get feed to the bees if necessary.

This matter of feeding is one of the most important problems in the spring. In spite of preaching and exhorting, beekeepers are still short on this point and too frequently leave colonies with insufficient stores in the fall.

It is easy to misjudge the amount of food that a colony will need. The usual winter consumption is not over fifteen or twenty pounds and, if the colony is left with sixty pounds of honey in the fall, it is assumed that this will surely be enough to carry it forward in the spring to the point where there will be enough nectar to keep the colony from want.

I remember one of the best beekeepers we have telling me he left at least $1,000 worth of honey with one apiary in the fall and still had to feed 800 pounds of sugar the next spring to make up for a lack of stores.

The reason for this heavy food consumption in the spring is simple. The adult bees eat little in winter when they are well packed and the winter is mild. When brood rearing begins, food consumption increases and this increases grows rapidly greater until the amount of food taken in a day is astonishing. The bee larva, after hatching from the egg, increases in size 1,500 times in two or three days. Imagine a human baby growing 1,500 times bigger than at birth in three days! What a tremendous lot of food would be required. Under these circumstances, the average father would be entirely unable to provide for the growing family.

Experimenters have estimated that about one cell of honey is needed for this growth of the larva. If the human babe were packed in the garage, a ten-room house would not hold enough milk to insure such growth. The average colony of bees consumes about seventy-five pounds of honey from the start of brood rearing to the beginning of the honey flow. It is easy to see that the colony may fall short and how easy it is for the beekeeper to misjudge this important problem.

We consider feeding our big spring job and we have cans of syrup at all our yards—enough to feed when necessary. No attempt is made to stimulate the bees to greater activity as is sometimes advised. We feed each colony about four half-gallon inverted feeders at a time, placed over the combs and protected with empty hive bodies covered with the hive covers.

MRS. CORA MCKEEL IS HOSTESS TO DELPHIAN CLUB

Mrs. Cora Chisholm McKee was hostess to the Delphian club and its visitors Tuesday March 25. German Opera was the subject of the lesson. Its characteristics were discussed, the stories of several important operas were interestingly told, and a few piano selections given from "Tannhauser," "Lohengrin," and "Hansel and Gretel."

At the close of the lesson Mrs. McKee served a delectable salad course. The meeting was thoroughly enjoyed by Mrs. Ward of Tishomingo, delegate to the Federation, Mmes. Couch, Hickman, Bullock, Wimbley, Lucas, Jeter, Herndon, Boud, Wells, Duncan and Miss Lucas.

STATE WORKERS AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Georgia McKinney, the president of the Women's Work of the Christian church in Oklahoma, was here and conducted a very interesting and instructive conference with the Women at the church.

At the luncheon hour she and the superintendent of the Young People's Work of the same church, Mrs. Underwood, held a like conference with the young people, which was attended by a large representation of the young people of the church.

At the evening hour, both Mrs. McKinney and Mrs. Underwood spoke to the workers of the church and all others who cared to assemble, each of the speakers stressing the importance of their particular line of work to the church both at home and abroad, endeavoring to arouse more interest in the church and its program, especially pressing the need of more members of the church attending the conventions and congresses of the church to study methods and ways that other workers have found successful in church work. Especial mention was made of the fact that the Fifth District Convention of the church was to be held today and tomorrow at McAlester.

The preacher announced that his subject for next Sunday morning would be "Who is Jesus Christ?" and at night his question would be "What the Bible Teaches About Music." REPORTER.

DISTRICT FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS OPENS HERE

The first program of the Eighth District of Federated Clubs was given in the auditorium at the College Wednesday evening with many past state presidents, vice presidents and all of the district officers at the present time, seated on the platform.

Mrs. Wozencraft, president, of the city Fortnightly club, welcomed our guests to the city. Dr. Linscheid, president of the College, welcomed them to the College and told of the aims, purposes and many of its accomplishments. Mrs. Orin Ashton, vice president of the Federation, responded in a most gracious manner, after which Mrs. Wozencraft introduced the official staff to the audience.

The musical program was well selected and beautifully interpreted, particularly the rendition of the G minor Prelude of Rachmininoff by Mrs. Harmon Ebey, of the Fortnightly Club, one of Ada's promising musicians.

Mrs. J. S. Pearson, an officer of the national Federation, spoke on "The Federation of Women's Clubs as a National Asset."

She told of many pitfalls awaiting the organized women's clubs and gave timely warnings to the newly enfranchised voters.

Mrs. Tom Hope, past president of the city clubs and state Federation, gave her place on the program to Mrs. John Threadgill, of Henryetta, the first mother of club women, the woman whose influence in shaping the plans, ideals and purposes of the united bodies of women thinkers of the state, will last thru the ages of Oklahoma history.

FEDERATED WOMEN'S CLUBS HOLD COLLEGE ASSEMBLY

The chapel program at the College this morning in courtesy to the visitors and delegates to the convention was full of good music under the direction of Mr. Fentem, director of the College band and Miss Ballard, head of the music department. The male quartet composed of Messrs Parker, Wright, Steed and Turner, made quite a "hit."

Among the speakers was Miss Victoria Lyles, rural school supervisor of Oklahoma, who made a talk on methods of teaching illiterates above the free school age.

Mrs. Catherine Van Lennin, assistant attorney general of the state, gave a most eloquent and forceful address on "International Relations," after complimenting the College, its president, faculty and student body in her usual charming manner.

Mrs. O. H. Cafky, of Forgan, vice chairman of the Democratic central committee, is expected to attend the last session of the district convention. Mrs. Cafky is a very prominent club woman of the third district.

Miss Maud O. Harris, recording secretary of the State Federation is the house guest of Mrs. P. A. Norris.

BRITISH PREMIER PLEASES PEOPLE

Style in Dressing Indicates Labor Leader is Britisher At Heart

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—Perhaps there is no country where clothes come nearer making the man than in England. That may explain why commentators on current events and world problems, give such close scrutiny to the photographs of Prime Minister MacDonald as they appear from day to day in the newspapers. A year ago, when Stanley Baldwin took up the burden of the prime minister, he received a "good press" as the British call it. Even papers of another political complexion were cordial to him, and they all seemed to rejoice that he raised pigs on his farm, and smoked a briar pipe. Add to this picture his gates ajar collar with the expansive four-in-hand knot, and there was a steady sound English gentleman and a Conservative. No doubt about it.

Then Labor came in, a political innovation and the home Briton wondered what would change and how much. Mr. MacDonald went to Buckingham Palace to receive from the King his appointment as prime minister. He wore the traditional top-hat, silky and shining. This brought sighs of relief from many frightened bosoms. Then a few days later he went to the country for a week-end, and wore a sports suit with knicker-bockers. There they were, the next morning, pictured in all the papers. That was proof of the pudding. Mr. MacDonald was at the bottom, a Britisher, first and last, even if some of his party members did sing the "Internationale" at their meetings instead of "God Save the King." And as though some further proof were wanted that the country was safe, some one started the story that the Labor leader played such a keen game of golf that his handicap was only seven. England would never go to the Bolshevik bow-wow as long as she had a man in No. 10 Downing Street who got his golf game almost down to Bogey.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Solomon Blinks, veteran scout and interpreter, and his young companion, Jack Irons, passing through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1783, are settlers of an Indian uprising, rescue from a band of redskins the wife and daughter of Colonel Hare of England. Jack and Margaret fall in love. On reaching Fort Stanwix Colonel Hare says both are too young to marry, but that if they are of the same mind after one year he will ask Jack to come to London. The Hare family sail for England, and the Irons family move to Albany.

CHAPTER II.—Unrest grows in the colonies because of the oppressive measures of the English government. Solomon and Jack visit Boston and witness a fight between a mob and a squad of British soldiers led by Captain Preston, a friend of Solomon's. Later they travel to Boston to testify in Preston's behalf.

CHAPTER III.—In November, 1776, Jack goes to Philadelphia and works in Benjamin Franklin's printing plant. Nearly three years later Margaret writes him from London reminding him that her youth is passing and saying she has appealed to Doctor Franklin. Blinks has received a letter from Washington to be carried across the ocean, and Jack sails with him.

"You are so big, Jack. You have built a six foot two inch man of that small lad I knew in Albany, and well finished, too—great thighs, heavy shoulders, a mustache, a noble brow, and shall I say the eye of Mars? It's a wonder what time and meat and bread and potatoes and air can accomplish. But perhaps industry and good reading have done some work on the job."

Jack blushed and answered: "It would be hard to fix the blame."

Franklin put his hand on the young man's shoulder and said:

"She is a lovely girl, Jack. You have excellent good taste. I congratulate you. Her politeness has a background of good character and she is alive with the spirit of the New World. I have given her no chance to forget you if that had been possible. Since I became the agent in England of yourself and sundry American provinces, I have seen her often, but never without longing for the gift of youth. How is my family?"

"They are well. I bring you letters." "Come up to my office and we'll give an hour to the news."

When they were seated before the grate fire in the large, pleasant room above stairs whose windows looked out upon the square, the young man said:

"First I shall give you, sir, a letter from Major Washington. It was entrusted to a friend of mine who came on the same ship with me. He was arrested at Deal, but, fortunately, the letter was in my pocket."

"Arrested? Why?" "I think, sir, the charge was that he had helped to far and feather a British subject."

"Feathers and far are poor arguments," the Doctor remarked as he broke the seal of the letter.

It was a long letter and Franklin sat for near half an hour thoughtfully reading and rereading it. By and by he folded and put it into his pocket, saying as he did so: "An angry man cannot even trust himself. I sent some letters to America on condition that they should be read by a committee of good men and treated in absolute confidence and returned to me. Certain members of that committee had so much gunpowder in their hearts it took fire and their prudence and my reputation have been seriously damaged, I fear. The contents of those letters are now probably known to you."

Stole Overcoat for Husband

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27.—It was cold weather and he was without an overcoat so she brought one home to him.

Thus it was that love for her husband took Dolores Whiting, 20, behind the bars of the county jail to face a grand larceny charge, according to the story she told an assistant county attorney.

She is alleged to have stolen the overcoat, together with a large quantity of women's wearing apparel, from the home of Mrs. R. E. Hill, 823 W. 11th street. Dolores and her husband, Clarence H. Whiting, who is an automobile painter, were arrested in Okmulgee, whither they had recently moved. They are also alleged to have taken garments from 1107 E. Seventh street, where they occupied an apartment while living here. The young woman worked for Mrs. Hill. "He didn't have a coat and I wanted him to have one," she explained with a catch in her voice. "I don't know why I took the other things. He didn't take anything at all. Clarence wanted me to send them back but I was afraid to. He told me it was wrong."

She said that she had never been arrested before, and denied all allegations that she and Clarence had never been married.

One of the clues that led to their arrest was found among some burn-

"Are they the Hutchinson, Rogers and Oliver letters?"

"The same." "I think they are known to every one in America that reads. We are indignant that these men born and raised among us should have said that a colony ought not to enjoy all the liberties of a parent state, and that we should be subjected to coercive measures. They had expressed no such opinion save in these private letters. It looked like a base effort to curry favor with the English government."

"Yes, they were overworking the curry comb," said Franklin. "I had been protesting against an armed force in Boston. The government declared that our own best people were in favor of it. I, knowing better, denied the statement. To prove their claim, a distinguished baronet put the letters in my hands. He gave me leave to send them to America on condition that they should not be published. Of course, they proved nothing but the treachery of Hutchinson, Rogers and Oliver. Now I seem to be tarred by the same stick."

Jack told him of his prospects and especially of the generosity of his friend Solomon Blinks and of the plight the latter was in.

"He must be a remarkable man," said Franklin. "With Preston's help he will be coming on to London in a day or so. If necessary you and I will go down there. We shall not neglect him. Have you any dinner clothes? They will be important to you."

"I thought, sir, that I should best wait until I had arrived here."

"You thought wisely. I shall introduce you to a good cloth mechanic. Go to him at once and get one suit for dinner and perhaps two for the street. It costs money to be a gentleman here. It's a fine art. While you are in London you'll have to get the uniform and fall in line and go through the evolutions or you will be a 'North American savage.' You shall meet the Hares in my house as soon as your clothes are ready. Ask the tailor to hurry up. They must be finished by Wednesday noon. You had better have lodgings near me. I will attend to that for you."

The Doctor sat down and wrote on a number of cards. "These will provide for cloth, linen, leather and hats," he said. "Let the bills be sent to me. Then you'll not be cheated. Come in tomorrow at half after two."

Jack bade the Doctor good night and drove to The Spread Eagle where, before he went to bed, he wrote to the Pennsylvania Gazette, describing his voyage and his arrival subsequently as the facts are here recorded. Next morning he ordered every detail in his "uniforms" for morning and evening wear and returning again to the inn found Solomon waiting in the lobby.

"Here I be," said the scout and trapper.

"What happened to you?"

"S'arched an' shoved me into a dark hole in the wall. Ye know, Jack, with you an' me, it allus 'pears to be workin'."

"What?"

"Good luck. Cur'us thing the papers was on you 'stid of me—ayes, sir. 'twas. Did ye hand 'em over safe?"

"Last night I put 'em in Franklin's hands."

"Hunkidory! I'm ready fer to go hum."

"Doctor Franklin wants to see you," said Jack. "Put on your Sunday clothes an' we'll go over to his house. I think I can lead you there. If we get lost we'll jump into a cab."

When they set out Solomon was dressed in fine shoes and brown wool stockings and drab trousers, a butter-nut jacket and blue coat, and a big, black three-cornered hat. His slouching gait and large body and weathered face and the variety of colors in his costume began at once to attract the attention of the crowd. A half-drunk fatidran surveyed him, from top to toe, and made a profound bow as he passed. A number of small boys scurried along with them, curiously staring into the face of Solomon.

"Ain't this like comin' into a savage tribe that ain't seen no civilized human bein' fer years?"

"'Wot is it? a voice shouted.

"'E's a blasted bush w'acker from North Hamerica, 'e is," another answered.

Jack stopped a cab and they got into it.

"Show us some of the great buildings and land us in an hour at 10 Bloomsbury square, East," he said.

With a sense of relief they were whisked away in the stream of traffic. They passed the king's palace and the great town-houses of the duke of Bedford and Lord Balcarras, each of which was pointed out by the driver. Suddenly every vehicle near them stopped, while their male occupants sat with bared heads. Jack observed a curious procession on the sidewalk passing between two lines of halted people.

"Hit's their majesties!" the driver whispered under his breath.

The king—a stout, red-nosed, blue-jowled man, with big, gray, staring eyes—was in a sedan chair surmounted by a crown. He was dressed in light cloth with silver buttons. Queen Charlotte, also in a chair, was dressed in lemon colored silk ornamented with brocade flowers. The two were smiling and bowing as they passed. In a moment the procession entered a great gate. Then there was a crack of whips and the traffic resumed its hurried pace.

When they had been conducted to the presence of Doctor Franklin he took Solomon's hand and said:

"Mr. Blinks, I am glad to bid you welcome."

ed papers in the apartment they formerly occupied. Detective Wade said. It was a bit of burned photograph on which the faces of the pair

He looked down at the sinewy, big-boned, right hand of the scout, still holding it.

"Will you step over to the window a moment and give me a look at your hands?" he asked.

They went to the window and the Doctor put on his spectacles and examined them closely.

"I have never seen such an able Samsonian fist," he went on. "I think the look of those hands would let you into Paradise. What a record of human service is writ upon them! Hands like that have laid the foundations of America. They have been generous hands. They tell me all I need to know of your spirit, your lungs, your heart and your stomach."

"They're purty heavy—that's why I generally carry 'em in my pockets when I ain't busy," said Solomon.

"I saw Sir Jeffrey Amherst this morning and told him you were in London. He is fond of you and paid you many compliments and made me promise to bring you to his home."

"I'd like to smoke a pipe with ol' Jeff," Solomon answered. "They ain't no nonsense 'bout him. I learnt him how to talk Injun an' read rapids an' build a fire with tinder an' elbow grease. He knows me plenty. He staked his life on me a dozen times in the Injun war."

"How is Major Washington?" the Doctor asked.

"Stout as a pot o' ginger," Solomon answered. "I rattled with him one evening down in Virginia an' I'll never tackle him ag'in, you hear to me. His right flipper is as big as mine an' when it takes hold ye'd think it were goin' to strip the shuck off yer soul."

"He's in every way a big man," said the Doctor. "On the whole, he's about our biggest man. An officer who came out of the ambuscade at Fort Duquesne with thirty living men out of three companies and four shot holes in his coat must have an engagement with Destiny. Evidently his work was not finished. You have traveled about some. What is the feeling over there toward England?"

"They're like a b'llin' pot every-where. England has got to step careful now."

"Tell Sir Jeffrey that, if you see him, just that. Don't mince matters. Jack, I'll send my man with you and Mr. Blinks to show you the new lodgings. We found them this morning."

CHAPTER VI

The Lovers.

The fashionable tailor was done with Jack's equipment. Franklin had seen and approved the admirably shaped and fitted garments. The young man and his friend Solomon had moved to their new lodgings on Bloomsbury square. The scout had acquired a suit for street wear and was now able to walk abroad without exciting the multitudes. The Doctor was planning what he called "a snug little party." So he announced when Jack and Solomon came, adding:

"But first you are to meet Margaret and her mother here at half after four."

Jack made careful preparation for that event. Fortunately it was a clear, bright day after foggy weather. Solomon had refused to go with Jack for fear of being in the way.

"I want to see her an' her folks, but I reckon ye'll have yer hands full to-day," he remarked. "Ye don't need no scout on that kind o' reconnoiterin'. You go on ahead an' git through with yer smackin' an' hym-by I'll straggle in."

Precisely at four thirty-five Jack presented himself at the lodgings of his distinguished friend. He has said in a letter, when his dramatic adventures were all behind him, that this was the most thrilling moment he had known. "The butler had told me that the ladies were there," he wrote. "Upon my word it put me out of breath climbing that little flight of stairs. But it was in fact the end of a long journey. It is curious that my feeling then should remind me, as it does, of moments when I have been close up to the enemy, within his lines, and lying hard against the ground in some thicket while British soldiers were tramping so near I could feel the ground shake. In the room I saw Lady Hare and Doctor Franklin standing side by side. What a smile he wore as he looked at me! I have never known a human being who had such a cheering light in his countenance. I have seen it brighten the darkest days of the war aided by the light of his words. His faith and good cheer were immovable. I felt the latter when he said:

"See the look of alarm in his face. Now for a pretty drama!"

"Mrs. Hare gave me her hand and I kissed it and said that I had expected Margaret and hoped that she was not ill. There was a thistledown touch on my cheek from behind and turning I saw the laughing face I sought looking up at me. I tell you, my mother, there never was such a pair of eyes. Their long, dark lashes and the glow between them I remember chiefly. The latter was the friendly light of her spirit. To me it was like a candle in the window to guide my feet. 'Come,' it seemed to say. 'Here is a welcome for you.' I saw the pink in her cheeks, the crimson in her lips, the white of her neck, the glow of her abundant hair, the shape, fineness of brow and nose and chin in that first glance. I saw the beating of her heart even. I remember there was a tiny mole on her temple under the edge of that beautiful, golden crown of hers. It did not escape my eye. I tell you she was fair as the first violets in Meadowvale on a dewy morning. Of course, she was at her best. It was the last moment in years of waiting in which her imagination had furnished me with endowments too romantic. I have seen great moments, as you know, but this is the one I could least afford to give up. I had long been wondering what I should do when it came. Now it was come and there was no taking thought of what we should do. That would seem to have been settled out of court. I kissed her lips and she kissed mine and for a few moments I think we could have stood in a half bushel measure. Then the Doctor laughed and gave her ladyship a smack on the cheek."

"I don't know about you, my lady, but it fills me with the glow of youth to see such going on," he remarked. "I'm only twenty-one and nobody knows it—nobody suspects it even. These wrinkles and gray hair are only a mask that covers the heart of a boy."

"I confess that such a scene does push me back into my girlhood," said Lady Hare. "Alas! I feel the old thrill."

FRANCE GIVES AMERICANS HIGH HONOR FOR HEROISM

YOKOHAMA, Japan.—For heroism at the time of the great earthquake of September 1, T. M. Laffin, an America long resident in Yokohama, has been decorated as a Chevalier of the Legion of honor French ambassador.

When on the afternoon of September 1 burning oil on the surface of Yokohama harbor threatened to destroy the French liner Andre Lebon, with hundreds of refugees on board, Mr. Laffin made the liner's escape possible.

Operating a small motor boat, he risked his life in attempting to fasten the ship's line to a buoy. When his motor stalled Mr. Laffin a powerful swimmer, took the line in his teeth and managed to reach the buoy and fasten it. The Andre Lebon, by using her winches was able to pull herself out of danger.

GIRL GOLFERS OF BRITAIN TO MEET

Golfing Peeresses of Nation Again to Meet in London Tourney

LONDON.—On the women's sport horizon no coming event is exciting so much interest as the renewed rivalry between the two golfing peeresses of Britain, Joyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch, except perhaps, the prospective tennis battles at Paris and Wimbledon between Suzanne Lenglen of France and Helen Wills the young American champion.

Since she crushed Miss Leitch, 9 and 7 in the finals for the women's championships, in 1922, Miss Wethered has been supreme among women golfers. Meanwhile she has been in retirement with an injured arm. Her return to the links will be made March 28 when she meets Miss Wethered on the famous Walton Heath course. It will be their seventh meeting, each having won three matches from the other. Four days later they will be in opposition again as captain or contending county teams at Northwood. In the spring they may once again fight out the finals of the British women's open championships.

They have twice met in the finals of the open, Miss Leitch winning in 1921 and Miss Wethered the following year. Miss Leitch also defeated her arch-rival in the finals of the French championship at Fontainebleau, and at another time in a county match.

Only five women, other than Miss Leitch, have defeated Miss Wethered in four years of almost continuous play. Mrs. R. H. Daene defeated her in 1920, Mrs. McNair and Miss Wragg the following. Mrs. Alan Beth in the last year's British championship, to the great surprise of everyone, and then only a few days ago, Miss Mand Hunnewell found the great Joyce game rusty from the winter rest, and trounced her in a county competition.

There, over a period of four years, is a record unparalleled in its continuous series of successes by any male golfer on either side of the ocean. Golf observers who watched the best men and women players on both sides of the Atlantic over a period of years, are almost unanimous in ranking Miss Wethered as the foremost woman golfer in the world. In technique and form she is compared most frequently with the young Georgian, Bobby Jones. For coolness, happen what may, no woman is to be compared to her. With Miss Leitch it is different. Being English, she is hardly to be called excitable, but she can and does reveal joy and irritation alike.

DUCAL LONDON HOMES TO HOUSE EMPIRE TRIPPER

LONDON—To sleep under a ducal roof may be easier in London next summer than to find lodgings at a second rate hotel. The Dutchess of Devonshire, the Dutchess of Atholl and the Dutchess of Norfolk are among those who have offered hospitality to visitors who come to London for the British Empire Exhibition.

The offers made by these ladies are in response to appeals by the women's section of the Exhibition that Londoners open their homes to the thousands of people who are expected to visit the city. The hotel capacity of London will only care for a fraction of the number of visitors expected.

The London house of the Dutchess of Norfolk is the finest old mansion in the city and contains forty rooms. Several other large residences have been offered to the committee which will work out plans to place them at the disposal of visitors.

B. Y. M. A. to Meet.
 The B. Y. M. A. will meet tonight at the First Baptist church at 7:30. The announcement says there will be refreshments and all of the young men who attend may expect a good time. Prof. L. A. QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from the sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding the serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store. Adv.

NEW GERMAN OIL FORMULA RUBS OUT RHEUMATIC PAINS

Local Druggists Give Written Guarantees to Refund Money if First Application Fails to Bring Relief.

A remarkably new discovery now promises quick, soothing relief to Rheumatic Sufferers. German chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache, pain, and Novocaine for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that is absolutely guaranteed to end rheumatic pains.

This marvelous discovery, known as Buhler Oil is a new combination of certain rare oils, which produces a clear amber liquid that is applied with the finger tip. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissues. Results are truly amazing! Tired muscles regain life, aching joints become supple, annoying twinges cease. Even the most advanced, stubborn cases show astonishing improvement almost at once.

Rheumatism, it has been found in an enormous number of cases, is due to toxic poisons formed in the intestines, which are carried by the blood to the muscles and joints—and the new German oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons.

So amazing have been the results from this German discovery that American distributors have authorized local druggists to offer it under a positive written guarantee, signed by the druggist himself, to refund the purchase price if even the first application fails to bring prompt and gratifying relief.

If you suffer from stabbing rheumatism aches in the arms, legs and muscles—if your back sometimes feels as if it would break in two—if you are unable to sleep, then buy at all means try a bottle of Buhler Oil today. You'll never want to be without it.

Remember—it is sold under an absolute written guarantee from your druggist. If it fails to give you relief after the first application, your druggist will refund the money without question. In this city Buhler Oil can be obtained under this written guarantee from good druggists such as Hensler & Smith, G. L. Thompson, M. A. Watts, Gwin & Mays. (Adv.)

French Capital Soon Will Lose Its Women Street Sweepers

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS.—The old women who shiveringly sweep the narrow streets of Paris have lost their fight against modern machinery. The city has decided their usefulness is ended. Henceforth only one vacancy in three will be filled, and before long these jobs will be abolished as their holders die or leave.

These women once were among the picturesque sights of Paris, swishing their long-handled, brushwood brooms, beginning at dawn. But now with few remaining they are more of pity than of romance in the sight. It won't be long until some good old woman will be photographed leaning on her witchlike broom and written about for the newspapers as the last of the sweepers.

France leads all other nations in the development and expansion of a military air force.

Federated Women's Club Leaders

Invitation.

We hope many will attend this convention of Women's Clubs and get a broader vision of club work and become imbued with their philosophy. "The whole world is so close akin that not one single individual may realize his high desire except the whole world share it with him. Every good thought is a silent prayer for peace, health and joy and success to every body including yourself." This philosophy is found in working force only in federated club work.—Mrs. Tom Hope, honorary president, O. S. F. W. clubs.

Miss Maud O. Thomas

Among the state officers attending the Ada convention is Miss Maud O. Thomas, of Beaver, state recording secretary and editor of The Oklahoma State Federation News. Miss Thomas was editor for 21 years, of the Beaver Herald, and has the distinction of being the first woman in Oklahoma to actually own and publish her own newspaper. The Beaver Herald is the oldest newspaper in the state but, Miss Thomas always adds she is not the oldest editor. When asked the secret of her success, she said, "Optimism."

"Why I'm so optimistic," said Miss Thomas, "I could even go out in the pasture, sit down on a milk stool and expect the cows to back up to be milked."

Mrs. Czarina Colbert Conlan
Supervisor of the Indian Department of the Oklahoma Historical Society.

By virtue of her ancestry, Mrs. Conlan is peculiarly fitted to fill the position which she occupies, that of supervisor of the Indian department of the state historical society, Oklahoma City. Through her efforts and knowledge of the traditions of her people she has been able to assemble a rare and beautiful collection of Indian arts and crafts that are priceless in point of beauty and skill.

Mrs. Conlan not only pursues her

Dr. Winnie S. Sanger

Dr. Winnie Sanger, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. She will speak Friday evening on "The Rules of the Game," official work with success and pride but she has filled her days with useful civic associations and activities and club affiliations. She assisted in organizing the first study club for women in her home at Atoka, in 1896, during the Indian Territory days. As club organizations grew, a territory federation was envisioned and she became the first state president, and attended the general convention of the federation held in Los Angeles in 1899 as the only delegate from the Territory. She was the first woman in Oklahoma to be elected a member of a school board, serving two years during her residence at Lindsay.

Mrs. Conlan is one-fourth Choctaw and one-fourth Chickasaw. Her father, James A. Colbert, belonged to the well known Chickasaw family of that name and he was born in Mississippi. She comes from a line of people who figured prominently in the affairs of the country as statesmen and warriors and many of the valuable documents in the museum bear the signatures of her tribal ancestors.

History of the five civilized tribes is so well known to Mrs. Conlan that her work as a recorder of Indian articles has been especially well done and with authority. No tribe is deprived of traditional song and story, dear to the hearts of each, in placing history marks upon her exhibits. She has endeavored to preserve for their posterity true historical facts and correct records. Mrs. Conlan enjoys a college education having been educated at Mary Baldwin Seminary, Virginia. Mrs. Conlan has travelled extensively in two continents and made two trips to the European continent and is familiar with the great museums in the old world. She does not confine her collections to articles pleasing to the eye, but tries to obtain those pertaining to tribal history and to documents of historical associations. Her study and experience has taught her values and she easily appraises an article for its true value.

The State Federation of Women's clubs bestowed a signal honor upon Mrs. Conlan last fall at the biennial when they named her one of five prominent club women for whom a tree was planted by the state.

Mrs. Conlan maintains a home, has a devoted husband and charming daughter, both of whom enter into her public work with her, and lend all possible aid and encouragement to her in its pursuits.

Miss Victoria Lyle

Miss Victoria Lyle, rural school supervisor of Oklahoma, was one of the speakers at the college this morning.

President Linseheid introduced Miss Lyle as 'one of the outstanding women of Oklahoma at the present time; initiative and executive, with heart full of her work for the illiterates of Oklahoma.'

Miss Lyle, on being asked for an expression on her "pet hobby" replied: "My pet hobby is adult education and better rural schools. We mean by 'better rural schools' every school a good school NOW whether such school be a one-room, two-room, three-room, consolidated or what."

"It can be done."

Ancient Ring Found in Norway

CHRISTIANIA.—A massive neck ring of solid gold, believed by experts to date back to 1200 B. C., was found recently on a farm in Norway. The ring, of artistic though barbarian design has been placed in the museum of Christiania University. It is believed to have been buried as an offering to the gods.

Mrs. Orin Ashton
Mrs. Orin Ashton of Chickasha, vice president of the State Federated Women's clubs has an outstanding desire that each woman may become trained to realize individual responsibility conscientiously trying to do her bit.

Civilization rests on your and my all-round development, and activity for the bigger, better things. More federated clubs mean more helpful women.

Mrs. J. C. Pearson

MRS. PEARSON OUTLINES MOTTO OF FEDERATION

"Good citizenship is nine-tenths right living and Americanization is not talking America but a matter of living America," is the motto of the Americanization division of the General Federation of Women's clubs, of which Mrs. J. C. Pearson, Marshall, Okla., is chairman.

"The work of the division includes practical work in teaching the foreign born English, citizenship, and home making. Especial attention is given to the preparation of those who have made application for naturalization."

"Since the passage of the Cable act women must be naturalized independently of their husbands."

"Good citizenship implies responsibility. It is inconsistent to cry from the housetops a government by the people and not exercise the right to vote. In the last presidential election less than one-half the qualified electors cast their ballots."

"We boast of being a government by the people yet less than one-half of the legal voters cast their ballots in the last presidential election. Have we a right to criticize?"

Mrs. W. C. Bolling

Mrs. W. C. Bolling, president of the Eighth district of O. S. F. W. C., is loud in her praise of the Ada clubs, citizens and courtesies being extended to the delegates and visitors in attendance at this the first gathering in the new district.

WINTRY DAYS IN SHANTUNG TOUGH

Bandits Driven to Violence;
Coal Demanded as Ransom Fund

(By the Associated Press)

TSINGTAO, China. — Shantung province again is exercised over the boldness and cruelty of local bandits; and the recent murder of S. S. Keh, a Chinese industrial railroad engineer, has attracted more attention than any event since outlaws last spring wrecked the Tientsin express and captured a number of foreigners.

Keh, who is believed to have been a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was taken by bandits. Seven weeks later a ransom of $15,000 was paid in his behalf, but nevertheless Keh was killed after the money had been turned over to the robbers.

The latter part of January 100 bandits, feeling the pinch of cold and hunger, swooped down on a native village to loot it. A heroic chief of police at the head of 18 men, drove them off after a fight in which 15 of the robbers were slain.

About the same time a force of soldiers long unpaid turned brigand and looted the nearby city of Feng-tzu, cleaning out banks, provision shops and lumber and coal yards. From a colliery they demanded 15 carloads of coal. The manager took to his heels to save himself and the bandits helped themselves. Sailors and marines in port have proved troublesome, but so far have not turned bandit.

In China it is not unusual for a man to be a defender of law and order one day and a rampaging bandit the next. It all depends upon whether the rice-bowl is being frequently replenished or not.

We're for the Proposed Delphi Shrine Temple

This bank is for a bigger and better Ada. That is why we are boosters for the proposed Delphi Shrine Temple for Ada. A Shrine Temple in Ada will be one of the biggest assets that this growing city could have.

The Ada Shrine Club has proclaimed Friday, March 28, Shrine Circus day in Ada at which time the Honest Bill and Combined Campbell-Lucky Bill Shows will open their 1924 season with a benefit performance for the Pontotoc County Shrine Club.

Ada should support these performances for two reasons. First, to see and enjoy the program of the biggest overland show in the world, which is an Ada institution; second, because the entire proceeds will be used in the endeavor to secure DELPHI Shrine Temple for Ada.

HUGE INDIAN COUNCIL SET FOR NEXT JUNE AT TULSA TO BE MONSTER GATHERING

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, March 27.—Between eight and ten thousand Indians, representing virtually every tribe in America, are expected here in June to attend a celebration of the Society of Oklahoma Indians, which it is believed will be the largest assembly of aborigines ever held.

In conjunction with the celebration a three day carnival will be held at which the various tribes will don war paint and exhibit their prowess in their traditional ceremonies, including the spectacular corn and sun dances, and numerous games. The carnival will be staged at Sand Springs park, under present plans, and most of the tribes men, their squaws and maidens, will be quartered in tents.

The Five Civilized tribes of Oklahoma will sponsor the fete. The original purpose in gathering the Indians together will be to perfect plans for the protection of social, educational and financial interest of the tribes, and to further government legislation toward giving the Indians more rights in respect to the holding of lands. Decision to hold the convention was reached at a preliminary meeting of Indian leaders here. Tribes in Canada and Mexico have written the superintendent of the Five Civilized tribes at Muskogee that they expect to have almost all their active tribesmen present for the celebration.

In addition a group of Canadians interested in Indian affairs of their country are expected here for the event.

Some who have signified their intention to attend are Charles F.

Loomis, authority on Indian affairs; Sir James Loughheed, minister of the interior of Canada, and Lady Loughheed; Brig. Gen. D. H. McDonald, member of the Saskatchewan legislature, and James McKay, chief justice of Saskatchewan.

Among the tribes to be represented will be the Cherokees, Seminoles, Creeks, Osages, Navajo, Blackfeet, Sioux, Hopis, Chickasaws, Delaware, Choctaws, Pottawatomies, Quapaws, Wyandottes, Iroquois, Eucheas, Shawnees, Arapahoes, and various Canadian and Mexican tribes.

A huge barbecue will be served throughout the meeting. The Indians have been asked to bring their tribal costumes for the spectacular entertainments.

Arrangements are being made to handle thousands of white persons who are expected to witness the revelries. Only certain parts of the dances and other fetes, however, will be privileged to the outsiders, local Indian leaders say.

Resolutions bearing on alleged mismanagement of Indian affairs in Washington will be discussed. This matter was brought to light at the meeting here at which the Society or American Indians was organized. Chiefs are preparing tentative plans to submit to the tribes to bring about a reformation of any mismanagement, and congress has been asked to investigate preliminary to the June meeting.

About 500 Indians from all parts of Oklahoma and a few from other states attended the meeting here in February. S. J. Soldani, Osage Indian of Ponca City, was elected
